

ALL OF ONE MIND

Legislators Evidently Do Not Want Extra Session.

SAYS DEMOCRATIC LEADER

Republicans of Both Factions Also Vote in Negative.

PROSPECTIVE TARIFF ACTION

President Will Be Advised to Handle the Question in His Own Way.

"I don't think there is one chance in a thousand of an extra session of Congress," said Champ Clark, minority leader in this House, and regarded as prospective Speaker of the next House, talking with a reporter for The Star today. "Nobody wants it," he continued, "except you folks around Washington. The President doesn't want it, Congressmen don't want it and no one is clamoring for it but the hotels, boarding houses and merchants of Washington."

And that's the word with the bark on from headquarters and it indicates that the democratic leaders have no intention of filibustering on the appropriation bills and thereby forcing the President to summon the new Congress in extraordinary session.

"This will sound powerfully good to the small army of those who will in consequence hold on to their positions and accompany my salary until the reorganization of it next House one year from next December."

From Republican Viewpoint.

It is not thought to be probable by Republicans here that the President will summon the democratic Congress in advance of its regular meeting. They say that such action upon his part would be an admission that the tariff is in such need of immediate revision as to war and task being undertaken by the opposition.

They go on to argue that such admission by the President could only result in the democratic House and progressive-republican-democratic change might send up to him, since he would have signed out with the proposition that immediate revision was necessary.

President Taft will be advised by many Republicans, as they come to town after Thanksgiving, to handle the tariff question by a message to Congress, rather than the regular session of Congress, commencing the first Monday in December next, and ending March 4.

To Hasten Canadian Treaty.

He will also be advised by some of these Republicans to hasten the negotiation of a treaty of reciprocity with Canada. They take the ground that if the President can secure a reduction of duties, of which the people are complaining, and which even the President has admitted needed revision, and can make a trade arrangement with Canada, he will take some of the wind out of the democratic sails.

Further, he will be advised that this course is absolutely essential to his record, come 1912, so that considerations of political expediency, as well as of economics, demand it.

Naturally, the standpatters would object violently to such proposed reductions, but the question at once arises, what have they to do with it now? They had their fling, it is argued, and the country rejected their course.

Standpatters Stand Aside.

It is said, however, that some of the standpatters are willing to be outwitted, and that is to say, they are ready to let the progressives take control and outline the policies to suit themselves. "It is their kith," these men say of the progressives; "let them fly it."

There is no disqualification on the part of the standpatters to take advantage of the opportunity. Indeed, they will not even say "thank you," for they intend to dominate, anyhow.

ROBERT C. CLOWRY QUILTS;

SUCCEEDED BY T. N. VAIL

Resignation of President of Western

Union and Selection of Old

Telegraph Operator.

NEW YORK, November 23.—Robert C. Clowry, president of the Western Union Telegraph Company, today tendered his resignation to the board of directors.

Theodore N. Vail, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, will continue to head the Western Union, which was pointed out by the resignation.

Col. Clowry in his letter of resignation said: "I hereby tender by resignation as president of your company, to take effect today."

"Having been continuously engaged in the telephone business for more than fifty years, I feel that I am entitled to retire from the service and take a much needed rest."

Mr. Vail, who succeeds Mr. Clowry, began his business life as a telegraph operator.

The Vail family was connected with the telegraph. Alfred Vail, uncle of the new head of the Western Union, was partner of Prof. Samuel F. B. Morse, inventor of the telegraph.

Newcomb Carlton of the British Western Union Company was today elected vice president of the Western Union Company.

DANCE WITH CLEAN HANDS.

Dr. Else Use a Handkerchief to Protect Your Girl's Gown.

—CHICAGO, November 23.—When you dance with a girl put a handkerchief in the hand that encircles her waist. That is to keep her gown free from spots.

Having given this advice to all young men, Municipal Judge Wells yesterday decided against the girl a case Mrs. Emma Boland had brought against B. B. Brown, a cleaner and dyer. He held that the spot which damaged her dress was not caused by the cleaner, as charged.

Mr. Sarah Fletcher Webster, seventy-three years old, widow of Jacob B. Webster, died at Glenholme, the residence of her son-in-law, Henry Amos Osborn, near Har-dee, Md., Monday, after a short illness of pneumonia.

THANKSGIVING-EVE SCENES AT CENTER MARKET.

HOW ABOUT A NICE CHICKEN?

BIG TURKEY IS HERE

Woodrow, the pastor, will deliver a sermon and there will be a musical program.

"Rare and Hounds" Chase.

A "hare and hounds chase" will be a morning feature of Thanksgiving entertainment by the Boy Scouts of the Y. M. C. A. Two patrols of the fastest running boys will be chosen as "hares" and the other scouts are to consider themselves "hounds." The first "hare" will be turned loose at 9:30 o'clock. They will be provided with chalk and have ten-minute start of the "hounds." At each corner turn the hares must make a chalk mark on the ground, and the hounds must follow. If at the end of the race the "hares" have decreased the handicap of ten minutes they will be the victors. It is expected that the "hounds" will increase the handicap they will have won. Several groups will be sent out in different sections of the city, and the race, which is expected, will consume an hour, will finish at the boys' department of the Y. M. C. A.

The children of the Washington Orphan Asylum will not only be given their annual Thanksgiving dinner, but will also enjoy a musical show which the plate printers of the bureau of printing will give in the afternoon at Odd Fellows Hall.
